The junior youth group meets every week on Mondays from 4-6 and on Fridays we have a children's class from 4-5:30.

How I joined the junior youth group is that I just wanted to do more things and meet more people. In the junior youth group we do prayers and after we do prayers we do this exercise book that has different activities. We memorize prayers and we learn about different stories.

There was a boy named Kaibome who led choices to hope and he learned how to make choices about hope or despair and he had parents that were really nice to him and in that moment they were at war and a few people that were in the war just went to his parents and shot them because they were from a different place and Kaibome he had no place to go he had no relatives anymore so he met these two kids and they offered a place for him to stay, food and shelter. And Kaibome started teaching children's classes so he was pretty surprised to be doing that.

What I learned from my tutor is how to get little kids to listen to you and how to teach younger ones. It's kind of hard and I'm slowly learning how to get children to listen to me and get them to do the right things and not the wrong and to make good choices.

I never pictured myself teaching my brother and his friends but now I'm just used to it. My favorite prayer in the program is "O God, my God, my Beloved heart's desire." And that quote means, it's just asking, telling, the creator that our heart is always desired because the creator is always with us.
